Speech and Language Therapy

The ALPS Common Competency Maps were used by Speech and Language Therapy students at Leeds Metropolitan University to reflect on their ethical practice.

Over three years, students studying Speech and Language Therapy are required to develop and demonstrate core competences in ethical practice. The ALPS Maps were applied in Speech and Language Therapy practice to show students their expected level of competence at each stage of their training. The Maps also provided a framework which students could use to gather and illustrate examples of the skills and competences they were achieving whilst on placement.
